SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE,

Oct. 26, 1886.

Sir:

I beg to direct your attention to the fact that the last compartment in the Post Office Vaults will be filled in twenty days from this date.

The overflow of coinage beyond shipments daily will have to be provided for. We have room for about six hundred thousand Dollars in the gangway of the steel vault under Coiner's room. The obstruction of gangways is of doubtful policy, but we have been forced to resort to it by stress of circumstances.

If No. 6 vault (under Cashier's room) is to be steel lined it must be cleared. It was cleared prior to July 1. 1886, but filled again during settlement. There was no other way if the vaults were to be verified. This vault has now $1.733.000 in storage. Its capacity is about four millions (4000 bags of $1000 silver).

If the overflow can be transferred to the Treasury that will relieve your vaults. If we are not to have No. 6 vault lined it can be refilled — which will temporarily tide over the difficulty.

I do not presume to suggest anything to the Department. But it is necessary to look ahead. Congress, having decreed the compulsory coinage of silver, refused to appropriate funds for providing storage. Hence it is of some importance to the Superintendent to know what is to be done after our storage facilities shall have been exhausted.

Very Respectfully

Hon. Jas. P. Kimball,
Director.

Sir:

I beg to direct your attention to the fact that the last compartment in the Post Office Vaults will be filled in twenty days from this date.

The overflow of coinage beyond shipments daily will have to be provided for. We have room for about six hundred thousand dollars in the gangway of the steel vault under Coiner's room. The obstruction of gangways is of doubtful policy, but we have been forced to resort to it by stress of circumstances. If No. 6 Vault (under Cashier's room) is to be steel lined it must be cleared. Its capacity is about four millions (4000 bags of $1000 silver).

If the overflow can be transferred to the Treasury that will relieve your vaults. If we are not to have No. 6 vault lined it can be refilled – which will temporarily tide over the difficulty.

I do not presume to suggest anything to the Department. That it is necessary to look ahead. Congress, having desired the compulsory coinage of silver, refused to appropriate funds for providing storages. Hence it is of some importance to the Superintendent to know what is to be done after our storage facility shall have been exhausted.
